

Copper - Did you know?

Quarters & dimes are 92% copper, while Nickels are 75% copper

The largest US copper deposits are found in the west

The US consumes enough copper annually you could make 120 round trips to the moon and back with size 12-gauge wire

Copper cookware is preferred by gourmet chefs around the world including Eric Eisenberg who discovered the benefits while studying at Le Cordon Bleu & across fine French restaurants

The Statue of Liberty contains

160,000 pounds of copper

There is one mile of copper wire in the average luxury car

A Boeing 747-200 jet plane includes 9,000 lbs of copper

Copper is 100% recyclable

Copper reinforcing rivets for denim jeans originated in 1873

Average single-family home uses 439 pounds of copper

Charles Darwin built a ship in 1825 with a copper-covered hull to extend its life and protect against barnacles

Copper in diets is essential to maintain bones and vital organs like the brain and heart - especially in children.

Copper has been used longer than any other metal in the world (10,000 years)

Copper is the standard benchmark for electrical conductivity, a standard set in 1913 which all other materials must be measured against

Source: CuVerro® as adapted from the Copper Development Association Inc., 2016

Best fact of all.

Copper is bactericidal, the first solid surface material capable of killing harmful, potentially deadly bacteria.*

CUVERRO
VICTORY FOR HANDS™

*To learn more, visit cuverro.com or follow @CuVerro on Facebook and Twitter.